

BREAKS IN YOUNGER SET

Younger Set Cast a Tinge of Shadow Over Youthful Jollity.

WELCOME THE WEDDINGS

While Rejoicing in the Congratulations, Social Circles Cannot But Regret Parting of the Ways.

There has been comparatively little to buy the fashionables of late, that is, little of a character to occasion anything more than the usual round of calls, informal dinners and small luncheon parties that make up the average week in smart circles.

In the first place the immediate future has in store a number of affairs for the brides and grooms that are to return soon from their wedding journeys.

Second, and because one really knows very much about it "for sure," the indication of a general breaking up of the "younger set" and incidentally of some half dozen local bachelors who have allowed as many other fellows to win some of the most popular young women now in the city.

Third, and because one really knows very much about it "for sure," the indication of a general breaking up of the "younger set" and incidentally of some half dozen local bachelors who have allowed as many other fellows to win some of the most popular young women now in the city.

An affair of a few friends, Miss Salome Emminger and Mr. Fred S. McCormick were quietly married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emminger, on West Douglas

They left at once for a month's trip to the Pacific coast and on their return will be at home at 4109 Douglas street.

A pretty wedding of the week was that of Miss Emily Twiss and Mr. Thomas Rath, both of whom are well known in the city. The wedding, which occurred at 4:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon at St. John's chapel. They were attended by Miss Jennie McMillan and Mr. Herbert Rickmeyer. An elaborate wedding dinner followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Twiss of Twenty-fifth and Parker streets, about thirty friends and relatives being present. Then came the bridesmaid, Miss Lillian Bushman, gowned in light blue silk, with overdress of white and muslin, and hat to match, and following her the bride with Mr. Thomas Porter, who gave her away. Round Eiffel Tower.

The crowd in the tower was the result that another minute and twenty-five seconds were consumed before the workmen seized the guidepost. Thus, technically, Santos-Dumont exceeded the time limit by forty seconds.

Crowd in with the Navigator.

The enormous crowd which had gathered inside and outside the grounds gave the balloonist a tremendous ovation. As his hands were within speaking distance, Santos-Dumont leaned over the side and asked: "Have I won the prize?"

Hundreds of spectators shouted: "Yes, yes," but Count de Dion, a member of the committee, approached and threw a damper on the enthusiasm by saying: "My friend, you have lost by forty seconds."

Numbers of the onlookers protested against this announcement in lively terms, but the count said: "That is the decision of the committee, in accordance with the rules of the contest."

The crowd, however, refused to accept this view and a warm discussion ensued, the majority of the spectators taking the ground that Santos-Dumont was entitled to the prize, because he had reached the grounds within thirty minutes, although he had not done so immediately. Santos-Dumont finally shrugged his shoulders and remarked: "Anyway, I don't care personally for the 100,000 francs. I intended to give it to the poor."

Boquets and a Banquet.

The crowd persisted in declaring that Santos-Dumont had won. The women who were present threw flowers over the balloonist, others offered him bouquets and one admirer, to the amusement of the onlookers, even presented him with a little white rabbit.

At this moment M. Deutch himself arrived at the club grounds, having only shortly before that moment reached Paris. He advanced, embraced Santos-Dumont, shook hands with him and said: "From my heart I consider that you have won the prize."

The crowd then gave the two men a great ovation, cheering heartily for Santos-Dumont and Deutch.

Some claims that he won the prize because he reached the park within the time and that the original rules governing the contest made no mention of having to touch the ground within the thirty minutes. The dispute is due to the action of the committee, which some time ago modified the terms of the contest by inserting the latter stipulation. Santos-Dumont at the time protested and refused to be bound by the fresh regulation and strenuously upheld his view with Count de Dion and other members of the committee, today finally declaring that he considered that he had won the prize and would not try again. If the money was withheld it was not his fault.

M. Deutch said he would give 25,000 francs to the poor, notwithstanding the decision of the committee, but Santos-Dumont declined to accept the offer as a solution of the difficulty.

There was a large assemblage of people at the Eiffel tower and considerable interest was manifested in the Santos-Dumont party of Paris, groups of people gathering in the streets to watch the progress of the elongated yellow balloon, with its long guide rope hanging and white canvas propellers whirling around, while those below distinguished the loud buzzing of the motor.

Santos-Dumont rounded the tower between the second and topmost platforms at about seventy-five yards away from the tower. The balloon pitched somewhat when going around the tower and Santos-Dumont then descended and the motor suddenly stopped while the balloon was a little distance from the tower. He thought he might have to descend, but luckily he succeeded in getting the machine straightened out. From that time on during the trip the motor worked satisfactorily.

(Copyright, 1901, by Press Publishing Co.) PARIS, Oct. 19.—(New York World.) Santos-Dumont's "Paris" interest in the exploits of the Santos Dumont airship is lessened on account of the frequent postponements of the chief attempt of all, sailing around the Eiffel tower and back. The last attempt was sufficient to prevent his attempting a definitive conquest of the Deutsch prize of $20,000 and people are beginning to sneer. Nevertheless, crowds travel out to Aero park every day to see his airship.

McCormick of Chicago, with his charming wife, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, was among the visitors yesterday, being introduced by the Duchess d'Eu, daughter of Dom Pedro, first emperor of Brazil. Mr. McCormick

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barker, Jr., Misses Edith Smith, Peck, Messrs. Huskell, Fred Nash, Livingston and Crab. After the theater supper was served at the home of Dean and Mrs. Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chase entertained the members of the city union of the Christian Endeavor society and the 1901 committee of the state convention Friday night. The Omaha Endeavorers' badges were distributed and felicitations exchanged on the coming state convention. A luncheon was served at 10 o'clock. Miss Irene McCoy won the prize in a unique picture guessing contest.

On Thursday afternoon the Washington Whist club gave a chaffing dish luncheon at the residence of Mrs. Henry Hiller on West Farnam street in honor of Mrs. Alexander Polack, one of the members. At the close of the luncheon Mrs. Mortiz Meyer with a few well chosen remarks presented Mrs. Polack as a token of remembrance from the club a case containing a dozen silver oyster forks.

One of the most enjoyable affairs given at the Country club in some time was the dance on Tuesday evening given in honor of Miss Blanche Estabrook of Chicago by Miss Mona Martin. The main hall had been cleared for the dancers and the balcony furnished with comfortable chairs, offering a most inviting place for rest between the numbers or for those who preferred looking on to participating in the gaily down on the floor. The music was furnished by a full string orchestra and late in the evening supper was served. There were about fifty guests present.

It has not been customary in the high school for freshmen boys to unite and form a society. An exception to this rule was made last year when the Webster Oratorical society was organized by freshmen boys. The purpose of this society was to have parliamentary practice. A number of excellent debates were held last year by these freshmen. The boys took up their work so earnestly and learned so much that Mr. Waterhouse has permitted them to reorganize. Their first meeting was held Tuesday and the following officers elected: President, Hugh Robertson; vice president, George Wallace; secretary, Morris Wallstedt; treasurer, Tom Allen; sergeant-at-arms, Adolph Sandberg. The following program committee was appointed for the year: Ralph Langford, J. S. Wright and Arthur Remington.

A high school orchestra composed of nineteen boys has been organized. Four of last year's members belong to this. This orchestra, under the management of Mr. Fairbrother and Mr. Clark, expects to make a good showing at next spring's encampment. These boys have been practicing for two weeks and intend to practice twice a week throughout the remainder of the year.

Some claims that he won the prize because he reached the park within the time and that the original rules governing the contest made no mention of having to touch the ground within the thirty minutes. (Copyright, 1901, by Press Publishing Co.) PARIS, Oct. 19.—(New York World.) Santos-Dumont's "Paris" interest in the exploits of the Santos Dumont airship is lessened on account of the frequent postponements of the chief attempt of all, sailing around the Eiffel tower and back. The last attempt was sufficient to prevent his attempting a definitive conquest of the Deutsch prize of $20,000 and people are beginning to sneer. Nevertheless, crowds travel out to Aero park every day to see his airship.

McCormick of Chicago, with his charming wife, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, was among the visitors yesterday, being introduced by the Duchess d'Eu, daughter of Dom Pedro, first emperor of Brazil. Mr. McCormick asked when the aeronaut was likely to soar over the Brooklyn bridge. "Possibly next spring," said M. Santos Dumont. Whether he succeeds or not in rounding the Eiffel tower within the prescribed thirty minutes before October 31, the limit of time in which the prize can be striven for, M. Santos Dumont is going south immediately afterward to continue his experiments on the Riviera throughout the winter. He thinks it is less dangerous to travel over the sea than over Paris roofs.

To Beat Steamship Record.

He will first attempt to beat the steamship record between Nice and Corsica several times in succession. Then he will try to go back and forth between Nice and Corsica repeatedly. Then he will try to go back and forth between France and Algeria.

When Mr. McCormick asked him whether he considered crossing the Atlantic an early possibility, M. Santos Dumont replied without hesitation. "The most difficult point always is the beginning. Look at steam and electric locomotion. Look at the automobile. Each went through an apparently hopeless stage. Crossing the Atlantic may be accomplished soon. Besides, as W. K. Vanderbilt was telling me the other day, if I have done nothing better, I have certainly directed universal attention to the most fascinating field of invention left open."

"Thousands today are working silently all over the world toward the same goal. Who can tell how soon a tremendous effort will bring a solution? Perhaps it will be upon entirely new and unthought-of principles."

An amusing feature of M. Santos Dumont's popularity is the overwhelming feminine correspondence it brings him daily. From all corners of the globe women send scented declarations and photographs. One styles him "the fearless knight of the ethereal kingdom." Many offer marriage and promise sympathetic comprehension and loving encouragement.

Count de la Vaux's attempt to cross the Mediterranean this week, though unsuccessful on account of contrary winds, served to test the deviator, a sort of float which compels a balloon to travel a few yards above the sea, at the same time permitting certain deviations by ropes commanding a rudder arrangement.

When de la Vaux and his companions found an irresistible wind driving them toward Spain they decided to land upon the coast conveying the balloon, a maneuver entirely successful, and one which is considered of great military value.

HYMENEAL.
